The Truth of History-President Johnson Defended Against De-pew and Grant. The following letter from ex-Gov-

Perry, says the Charleston News and Courier, in reply to the Depew-Grant after-dinner story about President Johnson, will be read with interest, and it is a valuable contribution to the literature of the subject, both on account of the unimpeachable integrity of the writer and the peculiar opportunities which he enjoyed of being with the topic of which he writes. Gov. Perry was a personal friend of President Johnson, and he writes with feeling as well as vigor. In a private letter accompanying his communication, he says that he wishes it published "for the truth of history, and the defense of a slandered man. SANS SOUCE, Greenville, S. C., Nov. 2, 1885, To the Editor of the News and Courier:

The communication of Mr. Depew, purporting to give a conversation with Gen. Grant at afdinner table, in reference to the conduct of President Johnson after the close of our civil war, is, in my opinion, a tissue of slanderous falsehoods from beginning to end; and once before Gen. Grant was convicted by the whole of Johnson's Cabinet of a want of veracity between him and

That Johnson was in favor of hanging the leading Southern men at the close of the war; that he was afterward flattered by the Southern aris'oo racy and changed his policy towards the Southern States, and that finally he was in favor of organizing a revolutionary Congress, with the Southern members and such of the Northern members as would go into this Congress, is absurd and preposterous.

Immediately after the close of the war I was appointed Provisional Governor of South Carolina, and went on to Washington before any such extraordinary aristocratic influence could have been brought to bear on him. I had several private and confidential interviews with the President. He said nothing about trying to hang Confederate generals and politicians. On the contrary he was kind and forgiving in his conversation and said all he wished was to see the Southern States restored to the Union and slavery abolished. He was disposed to pardon all who would take the oath prescribed adopt his suggestion and be once more loyal to the Federal Government. He was much pleased at the information I gave him in regard to South Carolina, and requested me to call on Mr. Seward, and the other members of his Cabinet, and tell them what I had told him. I did so, and my information was gratifying to them all. He ex-States would immediately elect Senathey might be able to take their seats when Congress met.

President Johnson was a man of acter, devoted to the constitution and deplored, whilst a strong Southern man and born Democrat, the unwise course pursued by the South in conse-Presidency. At that time the Democratic party had a majority in both houses of Congress and a majority of the Supreme Court. President Lincoln was therefore powerless to oppress or injure the Southern States.

ever made in the Senate of the United States on the Southern question. He was a highly gifted man, and I heard a distinguished lawyer of Tennessee, opposed to him in politics, say he was the most intellectual man he had ever

It is a great mistake to suppose that President Johnson could be influenced by wealth or aristocracy to pursue a course different from his own convictions of duty in any matter. It is true that he had no respect for wealth or aristocracy, unless united with integrity and honor, love of country and Republican institutions. He said once in my presence, addressing a charitable and religious association, that he "respected all sects of the Christian religion, and regarded every honest man as a brother."

It is foolish to suppose that Johnson, who loved and idolized the constitution and hated war and revolution, should have been in favor of organizing a revolutionary Congress and involving his country in another civil war. No one who ever knew President Johnson can believe such an absurd story. That he regretted, deeply regretted that the Sputhern members of Congress were not allowed to take their seats I know to be true.

On my return to Columbia, Gen. Preston, Dr. Laborde, Mr. Alfred Huger, Mr. DeSaussure and other gentlemen called on me at Col. J. B. Campbell's, to hear the news from Washington, I stated to them the kind, forgiving and magnanimous policy President Johnson was disposed to pursue toward the South and did pursue. They thought I had been deceived, but afterward acknowledged B. F. PERRY. their error.

An Incident Illustrating Secretary Lamar's Kindness of Heart.

Secretary Lamar did a very kind act a few days ago to an old friend who had fallen in the dregs of dissipation. The unfortunate man was a Mississippian, and the Secretary had known him for many years as a very learned, conscientious and honest man, but with an appetite almost uncontrollable for strong drink. The Secretary's friend came here several months ago, it is stated, and applied for some position within the Interior Department. Knowing his weakness for drink, the Secretary would not entrust him with anything of a responsible nature, and rebuffed him for awhile. Finally the Mississippi applicant became discouraged and fell to drinking deeply. He was drunk on the streets for several days and landed in the station-house one night in a beastly state of intoxication. He was without money, ragged and filthy. After he had staid there awhile, he sent word to the secretary, and he was taken out. Then Secretary Lamar had a talk with him, and the recreant individual promised to reform if he was assisted. Secretary Lamar knew him to be a man who wanted to do right, and he appointed him to a position as teacher in an Indian school in the Indian Territory-a place where there is total inhibition from the sale of all kinds of intoxicants, and where he could not possibly be within the influence of temptation. Then he installed the wife of the unfortunate man in a position worth $900 a year at the same place, and after giving him a good talk and assisting him in a substantial way, bid him God-speed on his journey. The reports received from the man since his introduction into his position have been very good, and it is believed that he will now reclaim himself. Secretary Lamar has almost unlimited faith in a man whom he believes to be honest, and this is one of them.

Mr. Carlisle and the House Com-mittee. New Orleans Times-Demoerat. Washington, Nov. 15-Mr. Carlisle is expected to arrive here on Wedand made, just before the election of Lincoln, the best and ablest speech ever made in the Sanar ablest speech coming so far in advance of the opening of congress dose not argue any particular necessity for his presence here as relates to the speakership; that question is already practically decided in his favor and the result would not be different if he changed his plans and delayed his arrival until just time enough to legally qualify for the duties of the office. It will be of advantage to him, however, to meet the different members of the house as they arrive, particularly the new ones, and discuss in an informal way the more important questions likely to engage the attention of Congress. Information gathered in this way will be of great value in the formation of committees, and never were House committees the subject of more anxious speculation than are those to be named by the Speaker of the Fortyninth Congress. The money question. the tariff question, the rehabilitation of the navy and the whole question of civil service reform will be decided for the better or worse, as the committees to which they are referred may be well or ill-prepared to consider and act upon them. This matter of making up his committees will, this year, be the supreme test of Mr. Carlisle for the duties of presiding officers of the House pure and simple. He is singularly well qualified, being quick of apprehension and of a calm and equable temper, but to marshal the forces of the next House, largely composed of new and untried men, so as to do justice both to the members and to the country will try his judgment and capacity for leadership to an advanced and most responsible degree. His admirers promise that he will prove equal to the occa-

Preparing to Encounter Disease Preparing to Encounter Disease.

The prevalence of malarial disorders being dependent upon vitiated conditions of atmosphere and water is, in certain regions, of course, inevitable. The grand question, therefore, presents itself to every resident of a fever stricken locality is, "What means shall I adopt to escape the dreaded socurge?" For a third of a century Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has been the embodied answer to this question. In a thickly populated, and sparsely settled districts alike, in lown and in country. It has afforded constant protection against malarial infection to those who have used it. It cradicates and prevents, with equat certainty, fever and ague, billous remittest, dumb ague and ague cake, and nullines also the pernicious after effects of using persistently the hurrful akkaloid sulphilite of quinine. It also remedies, with thoroughness, dyspepsia, liver complaint, constipation, debility and rheumatism.

THE REV. GEO. H. THAYER, of

Pro Bono Publico

The criminal court of Warren county was declared adjourned yesterday by Judge Ralph North without former notification to the grand jury or offi-cers of the court. This was quite a surprise to all concerned, as several important State cases had been set this week. Mr. Baum foreman of the grand jury, demanded of Judge North his reasons for such peremptory proceedings, and the judge said, "The surroundings of the court are inefficient for the proper conduct of it and I believe it my duty and for the good of the public to dissolve it." Similar statements were made by him to other officers of the court. For several days past rumors have been current the street to the effect that Judge North would have to adjourn court because they were unable to have process in a number of cases served. These are grave facts for the good people of Warren county to contemplate. A jair full of criminals, a crowded criminal docket, and a grand jury with a full budget of indictments, and data for many more, yet in the middle of a term finds it expedient for the people's good to dissolve the court because the surroundings are inefficient, because the court was unable to have its papers served by its officers. Comment on this subject is unnecessary, yet it is a subject which demands the investigation of every good and law-abiding citizen in Warren county. Judge Ralph North as a jurist and citizen is an honest, upright man, and we feel assured that he has been supported to the letter of the law by District Attorney Winchester, and although they are comparative strangers in our city, had they had the earnest support of the executive officers of the court would have been able to have done much good this term and brought many offenders to justice.

The grand jury were engaged last evening closing up the business they had on hand which they will finish today and adjourn.

NOTWITHSTANDING the fact that the whole civilized world is interested in the subject of the transfer of ships across the narrow neck of land which separates the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, by which the long voyage around Cape Horn would be avoided yet there has been no project proposed or suggested which has met with less favor in the minds of engineers of high standing, at least in this country, than the Panama Canal. The magnitude of the enterprise, the formidable engineering difficulties to be encountered, the unhealthiness of the climate, and the fact that the undertaking is a private one, depending on private subscriptions, constitute obstacles which, when taken together, seem to render success almost hopeless. The recent call for more money to carry on the work, when the most costly and difficult portions have hardly been begun, and after vast sums have already been expended, must awaken grave apprehensions on the part of those who have already invested their money in the enterprise, that the project is beyond the financial abilities of the most powerful syndicates .-Science Magazine.

The Will of Louis Riel. WINNEPEG, Nov. 18-The will of Louis David Reil, made in Regina jail Nov. 6th, has been given out. It is a long, rambling document and consists mainly of expressions of faith in the Catholic church and supplications for forgiveness for all whom he has wronged or offended. He "pardons" those who have prosecuted him, not omitting those who sentenced him to death.

No mention is made of any property. He closes with an admonition to his wife to bring their children up in a christian manner and says . "He leaves them neither gold nor silver, but trusta that God inspires the truly paternal blessing which he gives them.
